ROW AT A WEDDING.

Hall Where the Ceremony Was Being Performed Invaded by Democrats.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Jews and gentiles, religion and politics, became badly tangled at Martinez Hail, on Ada street, tonight, and it took three patrol wagons and thirty policemen to smooth matters down. The proprietor of the hall rented it for the wedding of David Steinberge and Miss Alicia L. Auxter. daughter of one of the most prominent Hebrew clergymen in Chicago. The wedding was a notable event in Jewish society. and over one thousand guests had been invited, and the majority were there. About 9 o'clock a large contingent of the Eleventh Ward Independent Club, an organization of Democratic faith, came and approunced that the hall had been rented to them for a dance, and they proposed to have it. The Jews refused to give up, and several Eleventh-ward statesmen forced their way into the hall, followed by several constitnents with more muscle than manners, and declared that they could will the whole outlit, bride and all. And then the bride fainted, and the politicians were forced to wait until she revived. Then they began to make more threats and the bride swooned again. By this time the police had arrived and made active preparations to quell the riot which was on the eve of bursting out. It was deeided the ceremony might go on, but the bride delayed matters by fainting the third time. When the wedding was over the club took possession of the hall, routed the orchestra employed by the Jews and announced that the hall was theirs, but the Jews could remain and dance by themselves. The compromise was accepted and the police went home.

THE SPECIAL SWEEP | ANNEXATION TREATY IN PERIL

Four Republican Senators Join with Democrats in Opposing Ratification.

Dilatory Tactics Begun Which May Prevent Action Before March 4, When Cleveland May Put His Foot on the Measure.

Princess Kaiulani Starts from England for the United States-Will Appeal to Cleveland to Recognize Her Rights in Hawaii.

OPPOSING ANNEXATION.

Effort to Delay Ratification of the Hawalian Treaty Till After March 4.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.-Every day opposition to the Hawaiian annexation treaty appears to grow stronger. It is understood that in addition to the three Republican Senators who have previously announced their opposition to annexation, Senator Allison, of lows, has expressed his antagonism to the ratification of the treaty. Being chairman of the appropriations committee Senator Allison can do more to defeat the treaty than any other Senator on the floor, since he can at any time bring up an appropriation bill, which has always the right of way. By judiciously consuming time with these bills the friends of the treaty can be prevented from any opportunity of considering the proposition before March 4. It is charged by some of the more impatient friends of annexation that the remarkable delay in disposing of the sundry civil appropriation bill in the Senate was mainly caused by the opposition to the treaty, and that this is but a sample of the dilatory tactics to be pursued by the anti-annexationists. As there remain only nine legislative days of this Congress and almost as many appropriation bills are yet to be disposed of in the Senate, it can be seen that the only hope of ratification during the present session lies in rushing through the appropriation bills. In addition to the appropriations there are important bills like the Nicaragua canal, whose champions will be as earnest in fighting for opportunity for consideration in the limited time left as will the annexationists. Commissioner Thurston, however, states that he is convinced that the treaty will be ratified before the end of the session.

Should the treaty not be ratified before March 4, it will come up at the extra session of the Senate which will be summoned to confirm the Cabinet and such other nominations as Mr. Cleveland may make. It is difficult to foreteil its fate under the new administration. Mr. Cleveland, so long as he thought the matter would be disposed of during the present administration, was quoted as favoring annexation, but now that the treaty threatens to come to him, along with some other important legacies of this administration, he has become more wary and is now expressing no opinion on the subject. Last week the Hawaiian commissioners visited New York. It is now said they called to see Mr. Cleveland, and asked for a conference, but that the new chief executive refused to talk about the subject of the treaty or to say whether he would favor or oppose its ratification should it go over to his administration. From this it is thought the commissioners really believe the treaty will not be ratified before March 4, and that Mr. Cleveland may not encourage its ratification when he comes into power. nominations as Mr. Cleveland may make. It

The Senate in executive session to-day considered the treaty, and Mr. Morgan made a strong plea for the annexation of the islands. Senator Mills is opposed to the present ratification of the treaty. He insists that a question of such importance ought not to be discussed behind the closed doors of the Senate, but should be freely and fully discussed by the press and the

To-day Representative Springer, of Illi-nois, introduced in the House the follow-ing resolution for reference to the commit-tee on ways and means:

Whereas, A treaty providing for the annexa-tion of the Hawahan Islands to the United States is now pending in the Senate, which treaty, if finally ratified by the Senate of the United States and by the government of Hawaii and sanctioned by Congress, will require the government of the United States to pay the public debt of Hawaii and the amounts due depositors in the Hawaiian postal savings banks, which may aggregate $3,250,000, the same of $20,000 per appure to the late (become the sum of $20,000 per annum to the late Queen of Hawaii and the sum of $150,000 in full to quire the Congress of the United States within one year to extend the tariff and internal laws of the United States to said islands, thus obligating this government to pay the inhabitants of said island a bounty upon the sugar which may be produced in said islands; therefore, Resolved. That the President of the United States be requested to furnish this House with any information he may have showing the amount of said postal deposits and the debt of Hawali, the rate of interest they may bear, when they will be due and where payable, and what was the market value of the bonded debt of that government prior to the establishment of the alleged provisional government of Hawaii. Also, to furnish this House with any information in the possession of this government showing the amount of sugar which is annually produced in Hawaii, and the amount of money which will be required to pay the bounty upon Hawaiian sugar in case of the annexation of Hawaii to the United States, and the probable amount of other obligations which this government will incur and assume as a necessary consequence of such Secretary of State Foster sent to-day to the chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, for the information of the Senate, the statement which Mr. Paul Neuman left at the department yesterday. and accompanied it with a report of the interview held with the Secretary. From the latter it appears that the object of Mr. Neuman's visit to Washington is to secure the restoration of Queen Liliuokalani to the throne under an American protectorate. He does not advise her restoration under any other circumstances. If the Congress of the United States shall not deem a protectorate feasible he would then tavor annexation, with a liberal allowance for the Queen and Princess Kaiulani, but he strongly objects to the continuance of the present provisional government in power.

PRINCESS KAIULANI COMING.

Accompanied by Her Guardian, She Left England Yesterday for New York. LONDON, Feb. 22.-The Princess Kaialani, heiress to the throne of Hawaii, sailed to-day for New York on the steamer Teutonic. The Princess is accompanied by Mr. Theophilus Davies, wife and daughter, and by Miss Whartoff. Her residence in England has heretofore been kept secret, but Mr. Davies, after repeated requests, consented to permit a correspondent to have an interview with the Princess at his residence, at Sundown, Heeketh Park, Southport, where the young lady has been residing. Mr. Davies is the principal British merchant connected with the Hawaiian islands, and is said to be a strong supporter of British interests in Hawaii. He has had virtual charge of the Princess during her stay in England, and is said to be on intimate terms with her Scottish as well as her Hawaiian relatives. Mr. Davies received the correspondent and eagerly asked for the latest news from America. He said that he had no reply to his recent request to the commissioners of the provisional government of Hawaii to delay negotiations until he could bring the Princess to the United States to plead for her rights. He feared, he said, that the commissioners were hurrying to complete the deal before her arrival. He was confident that if the Americans could see the Princess, who was a simple Christian girl, her throne would be saved. It would be an immense outrage to set her aside without a hearing. He knew Mr. Thurston and the other commissioners intimately. He had lived in Hawaii himself for years. He and his wife were friends of the parents of Kaiulani, and when Mr. Thurston sent her guardians. The Princess epent her holidays at Sundown as one of the family, and was treated like a daughter.

When the Princess entered the library she was conducted to an arm chair with some appearance of ceremony. The Princess Katulani is tall and slender, and with a more thoughtful, deliberate air than might be expected in a school girl. She is a brunette, with the eye of a gazelle and features that suggest just a suspicion of Kanka origin. She was somewhat nervous during the interview. She said she had nothing to add to the appeal which she had addressed to the American people, and she expressed her thanks that her appeal had been forwarded to the American newspapers. She had, she said, no definite plans, but would be guided by her guardian, Mr. Davies. She proposed to spend two days in New York and then visit Boston, where she would remain until after the inauguration of President Cleveland. Then she would go to dent Cleveland. Then she would go to Washington and would probably make a personal appeal to Mr. Cleveland. The Princess added that she had no friends in America, except the friends of Mr. Davies. She timidly expressed the hope that she might gain the sympathy of the American people. "I cannot see," she continued in a modest, hesitating tone, "why I should be summerily deprived of recognized legal rights for no fault of mine, and without being even notified to appear in defense of my rights. I only ask that right of appearance which American law gives to everybody before they are deprived of a right. I know absolutely nothing about this affair, except what has been in the newspapers. No notification has been received by me regarding it." "What do you think of President Harrison's message urging annexation?" asked the correscondent. "I prefer not to express any opinion on the subject," replied the Princess.

"Would you accept a pension or other compensation, should Hawaii be annexed?" "As to that also I prefer to say nothing."

was the reply. It was apparent to the correspondent that the Princess fears her case to be hope-less and that the American government is determined upon annexation. It was also evident that the Princess is guided by the advice of her guardian. In answer to other questions the Princess said that she was entirely opposed to the policy of the Queen, and especially in regard to the bills which the Queen is reported to have signed, and which finally resulted in her overthrow. The Princess said that she did not want Hawaii to be under a protectorate of any sort. She wished Hawaii to be independent. She believes that America and Hawaii should be warm friends. She had never seen the English officials, and did not believe that England would interfere in Hawaiian affairs.

Hawaiian affairs.

When asked if she would return to England after her present visit to America, the Princess answered: "Yes, if I am successful. I will be of age next year, and I will carry out my original intention, for which the Hawaiian Legislature voted $4,000, which was to visit Queen Victoria, then to visit the President of the United States, and then proceed to Hawaii and assume the position to which I am entitled." The Princess said that she favored the proposition made by Mr. Davies to the provisional government of Hawaii that a provisional government of Hawaii that a regency should be appointed for three years, with S. B. Dole, the head of the provisional government, as President, the Princess to be crowned Queen of Hawaii at the termination of the regency.

Here the Princess excused herself on the grounds of hurry in packing for the journey to America. As she arose she said, in a pathetic tone and with sudden spirit:

"I want to do all I can for my people, and to be an honest and true leader to them. I simply want to do my duty to beloved Hawaii." The Princess shook hands warmly with the correspondent and thanked him for the sympathy shown with her cause, and asked him to convey her thanks to the American press for the hearing given her. The Princess and friends were then photographed in a group in the conserv-

The party departed on the noon train today, alighted at Bootle and drove to the steamship dock, where they boarded the Tentonic. Although the name of the Princess was on the passenger list, her identity was unknown at Southport and elsewhere.

HATCH FIGHTING IN VAIN

Little Prospect of the Anti-Option Measure Passing the Lower House.

Many Representatives Were Too Weary Yesterday, After Their All-Night Session, to Give Much Attention to Work.

SEEMS DOOMED TO DEFEAT. Little Probability that the Anti-Option Bill Will Pass-Morton's Influence.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Feb. 22,-It now looks as though the anti-option bill would fail. Mr. Hatch, the principal champion of the measure, made a gallant fight for its conagain defeated. Mr. Hatch ascribes the growing opposition to the bill to the recent interview with Mr. Cleveland's coming Secretary of Agriculture, Hon. J. Sterling Morton, in which Mr. Morton expressed his disapproval of the anti-option bill in the strongest terms. Many Congressmen who have hitherto favored the passage of the anti-option bill have been strongly influenced by this interview, maintaining that a measure which is so strongly condemned by the incoming administration's principal representative of the agricultural classes cannot be beneficial to the farmer. In addition to this opposition from the members with farming constituents, the Western railroads and Eastern commercial bodies have redoubled their efforts in bringing their pressure to bear upon members since the bill has reached the House. It seems probable, therefore, that even if Mr. Hatch succeeds in forcing consideration the anti-option bill is doomed to defeat.

WEARY REPRESENTATIVES.

The All-Night Session of the House Had a

Depressing Effect on the Members. WASHINGTON, Feb. 22,-The incidents of the all-night session of the House were similar to those which occur on every such occasion. Wit and bumorous repartee were prevalent, but occasionally a harsh word, uttered either intentionally or unintentionally, would stir up strife among the members, and would lend a somewhat dramatic effect to the proceedings, or rather to the lack of proceedings. Under the guise of questions of personal privilege, a number of gentlemen availed themselves of the opportunity to state their views on the carcoupler bill, and acrimonious colloquies were not infrequent. But, taken as a whole, the session gave rise to no continu-ous bad feeling, and as the hours passed sway the members became less aggressive and more sleepy. The floor of the chamber was strewn with papers-large papers. small papers and scraps of papers of almost infinite small proportions. Members lounged in their chairs, reposed on the many sofas or congregated in the cloakrooms to enjoy a cozy chat and a fragrant eigar. Occasionally the loungers became, to a certain extent, interested in the proceedings; occasionally the occupants of the sofas were aroused by the tones of angry voices; occasionally the smokers left the cloak-room fires to turn an attentive ear to what was being done in the House. Toward the "wee sma" hours Mr. Allen.

of Mississippi, made one of his characteristic humorous speeches, mainly directed toward the occupant of the chair, Mr. Bailey, of Texas. It was appreciated by the members who were in attendance, for it was in his best vein, but at the same time it excited some resentment. In fact, the resentment was so strong that subsequently Mr. Crain, of Texas, moved that it be expunged from the Record. But objection was made. Then Mr. Crain asked unanimous consent that all the proceedings of the night relating to excuses be expunged from the Record. To this Mr. Tracy, of New York, objected, but there was a general feeling that the proceedings of the day were not creditable to the national House of Representatives. But the fight was a stubborn one, the more stubborn because it was not political. The advocates of the car-coupler bill showed a stern determination to pass the measure, and their oppoto England they consented to become her | nents put up equally as strong a face against its enactment. Finally, at 6:30, the House adjourned. There was a private agreement that Mr. Wise should be recognized next Monday to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

The first of what it is said will be a daily series of conflicts between the appropriation bills and the anti-options bill, until the latter is acted on, was the feature of to-day's session of the House. The members were worn out from last night's session, and the day passed tamely. Mr. Hatch had grown tired of the delay to which the anti-options bill is being subjected, and when it was moved to take up the postoflice appropriation bill he antagonized the motion with the measure of which he is champion. Being defeated, he made the same fight, also unsuccessfully, when the postoflice bill was passed and the Indian appropriation bill was called up. Members were thus put on record, and then the Indian question was discussed languidly for three hours.

The House broke into a roar of laughter, and "Deacon" White, formerly a member of Congress, who had come from New York to watch the fight over the anti-options to watch the tight over the anti-options bill, and was on the floor, shook with glee, when the Speaker called Mr. Hatch to the chair as presiding officer, just as the House went into committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Hatch was reluctant to take the gavel, but yielded after a few words of private explanation from Mr. Crisp. When general debate was closed Mr. Outhwaite submitted the conclosed Mr. Outhwaite submitted the conference report on the army appropriation bill, in order that it might be printed. After Mr. Hooker had unsuccessfully endeavored to get unanimous consent to pass a bill for the relief of a Mississippian and had announced his solemn purpose to be a thorn in the side of every other member who wanted any legislation until this bill was passed, the House adjourned.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Washington's Farewell Address Read and the Sundry Civil Bill Passed. WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.-To-day's session of the Senate was prefaced by the reading of George Washington's farewell address. This appropriate commemoration of the birthday of the father of his country was introduced five years ago through a resolution offered by Hoar, and on that occasion the address was read by Mr. Ingalls, who was then President of the Senate pro tem. To-day, under a like resolution offered by Mr. Hoar, it was read by Sepator Mander-son, of Nebraska, who holds the same office. Mr. Manderson is a good elocutionist, and his reading had a close and respectful attention on the part of Senators and visitors in the galleries.

There was little time wasted in finishing up and passing the sundry civil appropria-tion bill, after which the conference report on the army appropriation bill was agreed to and the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill was brought before the Sennte. Before any progress was made on this bill the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. When the doors were reopened the Senate adjourned.
